THE ETERNAL MASCULINE.

—Many a man has taken ways who absolutely neglects his bringing back ones.—Prof. Simp.

(Translated from the Russian.)
Buzukoff Mityokitch laid the loaded revolver carefully on the sofa.

"This is the end!" he muttered. "Before sending you bullet through my waiting brain, I will write three notes—to the three women who have broken my heart."

And he struck his wrist with a souvenir maulpin and dashed off the three notes in blood as follows:

"Adored but faithless Katyusha—I am about to end all. Your slave, Buzukoff."

"Adored but faithless Anna—Good-bye forever. Your all but dead slave, Buzukoff."

"Adored but faithless Lizzie—Good-bye. I will meet in heaven if you can get in. Your faithful slave, Buzukoff."

Having addressed the notes, he picked up the revolver and placed the muzzle between his right temple and his forehead.

"This is the end!" he muttered, to gain time.

At that second his nose caught a whiff of drosky stew, his favorite dish. "Drosky stew for supper!" he cried excitedly, and dashed the revolver out of the window and lighted three cigarettes in rapid succession with the notes.

In Doubt.

REVEREND M'KINNEY DESCRIBES NEED OF NEW PENSION FUND

Church Has Lagged Behind Business and Government in This Form of Social Justice.

"The many poor, drifting derelicts cast out from the ministry in old age are indeed a poor commentary upon the generosity of the church towards its workers," said the Reverend John McKinney in a plea yesterday for contributions with which to swell the church pension fund of five million dollars which is to be used for the pension of aged and infirm clergy throughout the country.

"People think that when they pay a minister from $300 to $1,000 a year that he can live like a prince. He can educate his children, and maintain a position of respectability on a plane with much more wealthy members of the parish. Ministers enter the ministry with a knowledge of the terribly hard, uphill fight they will have to make, but they enter as a matter of faith and trust. They leave the worldly things and the money and abandon all opportunity for making money."

The $5,000,000 pension fund is to avert the tragedies of the ministry as they are in business. It is a business for the old, faithful employees; they bestow a pension on them in the attitude of well done, good and faithful servant. As yet the church has not a sufficient monthly pension of $15 provided in some cases where the church has maintained an aged clergy fund. The offerings for this fund are taken at the Christmas service, but they are sporadic and doubtful, and fully dependent upon the attendance of that day.

Clergymen cannot go out and beg or sell life insurance or have any 'side line' as can members of other professions. They must keep solely to their own calling or lose their self-respect and the respect of the congregation. But the pension fund insures the efficiency of the present by removing the worry and doubt of providing for the future. It provides for the automatic establishment of a pension for the clergyman who voluntarily retires at the age of 68 years. The minimum is to be $300.00 and the maximum one half of the previous salary. There is also provision for disability pension for widows, and for orphans. The exact amount is calculated in each case from the salary and from the period of service in the church.

Before yesterday $4,800,000 of the sum had already been raised; but subscriptions were conditioned on the securing of the total amount by March 1. The pension fund is to be in all the churches of the sixty-eight dioceses of the country, and according to Mr. McKinney there was no doubt that the full amount would be obtained.

Pensions are now recognized only as an investment and of the disbursement to the individual parishes in the form of contributions to the fund.

"The pension raises livelihood of the minister from the plan of an unhappy begging of alms to that of right and justice. It is a deferred salary and a guarantee that the minister will spend his life without fear for the future of his wife and children. The former position of insecurity was most humiliating to many of our best men. Pensions are now recognized only as an investment and of the disbursement to the individual parishes in the form of contributions to the fund.

HIGH SCHOOL CLUBS ENJOY A BANQUET

The first annual inter-club banquet given in the high school auditorium on last Saturday evening proved a big success. It was attended by over 125 juniors and seniors, members of the various clubs.

At half past six o'clock all sat down to a bountiful two-course dinner. Miss Dwyer acted as toastmistress and opened by giving a brief explanation of the occasion, followed by a short toast from Mr. Faust. The party had the extreme pleasure of listening to the high school superintendent of the school, Mr. J. H. Sager, who gave the most interesting and instructive subject of the evening, "The Education of the Future."

TEACHERS OF COUNTY TO MEET IN BELOIT

Superintendent Antsdel Announces Program for Rural School Section at Convention March 10.

The annual meeting of the Rock County Teachers' association will be held this year at Beloit on Saturday, March 10. Principal J. E. McNeal of the Beloit high school, who is president of the association, is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Superintendent Antsdel, who will be chairman of the rural school division of the program, has announced the following program, which will be of special interest to the district school teachers.

"To What Extent Can Standard Tests be Applied to Rural Schools?" W. W. Thiesen, supervisor of educational tests, state department of education.

"Reading in Country Schools," Miss Helen Martin, county superintendent of Walworth county.

"How to Use the Course of Study in Agriculture for Rural Schools," Principal G. A. Schmidt, Whitewater normal.

A prominent feature of the rural school section will be the exhibiting of cooking, sewing and manual training work done by rural school pupils of Rock county. An effort is being made by the county superintendent's office to secure a large showing of this character from all of the schools that have had classes in these subjects. Exhibits will be received at Mr. Antsdel's office a few days before the convention, or they may be brought directly to Beloit by the teachers themselves.

The convention will include a general session in the morning, followed by a session in the afternoon. There will be six or eight sectional meetings according to the present arrangements. Speakers of prominence will address the main convention and the various divisions.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor Gazette:

Referring to your editorial of Tuesday, February 13, 1917, relative to "Fire Hazards," will say that the matter has under serious consideration for some time. It is a well known fact that, with the introduction of motor driven apparatus, the consolidation of station units is in the interest of economy and efficiency and is accepted as such by Underwriters' Inspection Bureaus. In our case particularly, the further efficiency is provided by the consolidation of the two down-town fire stations. The firemen are available at all times—and I am particularly referring to the "meal hours" and "days off" of the men, and the further fact that protection to the whole department is under the immediate and personal direction of the chief or other officer in charge.

Police Station and Lockup. With the consolidation of the forces of the fire and police stations, naturally the west side station would be the one used by the fire department, thus making the east side fire station available for the police station. A little history might be injected into this article.

A number of years ago the city purchased a new site for a fire station at the northwest corner of Jackson and Wall streets, (now used by the street department) intending at some future time the erection of a new fire station and lockup, or a combination of all.

But a new city hall building was proposed and since built, and lockup space provided for them. The fire department, however, at that time, it was generally conceded that a city hall building was not a place in which to house the fire station, and lockup, for many and obvious reasons, which are unnecessary to detail at present.

But at any rate, the plans for the new city hall building called for a city lockup and provided solid brick walls all around it with a cement floor and of course the usual floor and ceiling construction above.

At that time the building committee assumed that such a construction was a reasonably safe fire hazard for the purposes intended, with the further thought that inasmuch as the building was likely to be an office on this same floor (basement) of the building and in close proximity to the said lockup at all hours of the day and night, it was deemed to be reasonably safe for that purpose. So much for history.

The building of a new lockup in the rear of the present east side fire station is the largest item of expenditure of funds in making these proposed changes.

There are various other "good things" in view that will be taken up by the council and worked out to a final conclusion.

Things that we now have, and that are good, to them we must hold fast and maintain to a still greater efficiency. Things that we are to have, and that are good, to them we must hold fast and maintain to a still greater efficiency. FIERCE KHATTAK IS ENGLISH ARMY DANDY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
British Headquarters in Mesopotamia, Feb. 18.—The Khattaks are the dandies of the Indian army. They are like the Celts of the British Army, reckless, generous, improvident, mercenary, altogether a generous and responsive sort of people, but with the queer kink that one finds in all Pathans, that primitive sensitive point of honor or shame which puzzles the psychologist.

The Khattaks kept their spirits up all through the hot weather. They are too lively sometimes. As soon as the drum and oboe sound they start calling and make their way to the front. They are at the front of the line, but they are more demonstrative. It is a good thing to be near when the Khattaks are at the front. At the first sound of the drum and oboe they break into a wild treble shriek, bawling off, perhaps, with the bal-bala, the Pathan imitation of the gurgling of water.

BAD TRADE.
In any town, no matter how prosperous, there is always a certain proportion of merchants who complain of bad trade. They make a melancholy report of local business conditions. Nothing doing is the burden of their refrain. So far as they are concerned, there is no money in circulation.

Yet the current of prosperity is flowing by their door. Hundreds of thousands of people pass their stores every day, most of them with money in their pockets, bound either for some other local place of business, or on their way out of town to buy.

There is plenty of money and plenty of prosperity at this time. If business is dull or if it does not grow, there must be something the matter with us or our methods.

Usually the trouble is that the public has a kind of prejudice against such stores. Somehow, it has got the impression that they are not up to date and are running along in the same old fashioned way that they did years ago.

The trouble in such a case is almost invariably that the store has done nothing to bring itself before public attention. It simply opens its doors in the morning, and expects the public to enter without further solicitation. But the public is not built that way. It does not care much to visit stores unless it feels in advance that it is going to buy something there.

People hate to go into a store and then walk out without buying, particularly in their home town where they are known. So having this impression in their minds, a little unfavorable to such stores, they simply keep away from them, or only visit them when they want something quick in an emergency.

An impression of that kind can be dispelled by advertising. In short time a campaign of publicity gives an impression that a merchant has woken up. It makes him look like a live one. People begin to think that after all he may be up to date, and they come around to look at what he has.

THE REAL REASON.
It is being asked why the United States should break with Germany and maintain relations with the allies. The answer is that the entire world has never sunk a neutral ship or taken a single neutral life. What friction there has been between them and the United States has arisen from commercial questions, and the United States does not go to war in order that it may find a market for more wheat or pork.

The rupture with Germany is not due to a question of trade, but in protection of the lives of American citizens. Extending over a period of two years, our ships have been deliberately sunk and lives of our citizens taken in violation of the laws of nations. Janesville, itself, has paid its share of the toll.

One instance, but not the first, was the Lusitania which, loaded with civilian passengers, was sunk May 7, 1915. Among the victims were over one hundred American citizens, some of whom were women and little children. The horror of it was accentuated by the German people gloating over the deed, and celebrating it by holidays and parades of school children. Official Germany admitted responsibility for the deed and decorated the submarine commander.

Germany continued to send merchant vessels to the bottom, until March 10, 1916, the Sussex, a cross-channel passenger boat, was attacked with risk and injury to American citizens. When evasion was no longer possible, Germany officially admitted the deed was done by one of its submarines.

For a year the United States had protested against Germany's indiscriminate killing of its citizens. Now, when this deed was proved by her own confession, the United States addressed a note to the German government, in which it said:

The United States can have no choice but to sever diplomatic relations with the German empire altogether. January 31, 1917, the German government notified the United States that it would resume its indiscriminate submarine warfare, and the United States then severed diplomatic relations. It has not, and will not, declare war for any of the crimes against American citizens already committed. It has given notice that hereafter it will protect its citizens against unlawful violence, because, as life, and property, destroyed, cannot be compensated in monetary damages as if it were a tierce of land.

This is the reason we break with Germany and retain relations with the entente powers.

GOING TO THE ROOT.
District Attorney Dunwiddie has gone to the root of the evil that has plagued Janesville and the immediate vicinity for many years past. The Janesville city council could restrict the number of liquor shops, could restrict the territory where liquor was sold, established hard and fast hours for the sale of liquor, the abolishment of stalls from such places, make it impossible for women to go there and drink, but with South Janesville wide open the question was, "What's the use?"

Sundays and after hours it has been perfectly easy for residents of the city, sportively inclined, to travel by interurban, auto, or street cars, to within a few steps of the source of supplies. If the allegations in the complaint, filed by the district attorney are true, it is essential that such an eyecore be wiped out of the community. Behind the district attorney stand the citizens of Janesville, who appreciate the up-hill fight against legal technicalities which will seek to hinder what he has set out to accomplish.

In this connection comes the question. Supposing a project on foot to make Janesville "dry" and yet leaves the town of Rock, where South Janesville is located, and Crystal Springs in the town of Janesville "wet," what would be accomplished? Better have a vote on state-wide prohibition than local option that has never absolutely prohibited and placed a premium on boot-legging.

Oregon recently voted "bone dry" and dispatches today announce that through the "underground railway" whiskey is being sold for six dollars a gallon and better grades at ten dollars, within its limits. However there is a measure pending in the Wisconsin legislature that the voters of the state should be given a chance to vote on the question of prohibition in Wisconsin. It is up to the legislators to see the people have a real voice in the government and decide this question for themselves.

Meanwhile the district attorney has taken a grand step toward cleaning up local conditions and his efforts to eradicate the South Janesville condition should meet with hearty support. The only way to cure a social ulcer is to cut it out entirely. While the district attorney can aid by securing an injunction, still the voters of the town of Rock can go further and vote their town dry at the coming election, and there should be concerted action in accomplishing this result.

If the town is voted dry our present sheriff can be depended upon to see that it remains dry. The great evil that both the railroads and the city government of Janesville have combated for many years will be cured at one full sweep, and it would appear that the men and women interested in making this better city could do nothing more worthy of their cause than aiding in this fight.

The arrival of many strange birds in the immediate vicinity, and the consequent study of bird life is bound to have its influence toward the care and development of these feathered visitors who go to make up the summer months so enjoyable. Now is the time to feed them and show them that you are their friend, not their enemy. The days of ruthless destruction of birds' nests and stealing of eggs appear to be past and in its place comes a love for nature which can be directly traced to the teachings in our schools.

Well, the legislature finally sent President Wilson their belated promise of support in the national crisis. True the loud and blatant shout about patriotism is often found wanting when the crucial test comes, but Wisconsin should not have been among the last of the states to endorse the national government no matter what inner workings in the minds of the legislators did not permit them to see how small they really were in the minds of the general public.

A resident of Janesville who recently returned from the eastern war manufacturing districts reports that the big armor plate, steel mills and in fact every line of industry is organized so that within forty-eight hours of a possible declaration of war, three eight-hour shifts could be placed at work in every factory of importance to turn out war munitions for Uncle Sam. This is encouraging.

Already residents with available garden plots are planning to make efforts to reduce the H. C. L. by planting early some of the necessities for table use that cost so much at the stores. If the American people would realize they could utilize the waste ground for gardens it would mean much toward reducing the actual cost of living and from insuring these workers with health.

It would appear that some day we are to have a consolidation of the two down town fire departments, more efficient service, and the reorganization of the police department in new quarters that will be far more suitable to their needs and requirements. Of course it can not be accomplished in a day, but it is coming.

Governor Philipp may not have sent President Wilson a telegram of the support of Wisconsin, but he has made internal preparations in case Wisconsin was called into service to supply a requisite number of men. Actions sometimes speak louder than words.

The Wisconsin legislature would do well to listen to the general demand that the question of wet or dry as a state issue be passed at the present session so that the voters of the state can decide for themselves on this momentous question. Let the people rule.

The action aimed to eradicate the South Janesville nuisance is timely. It would be followed by a stirring campaign in the town of Rock to put these resorts out of business by a dry vote.

that is so overwhelmingly large that there is no question about its meaning.

Sand! Sand! My kingdom for a carload of sand. Richard the Third wanted a horse to carry his life, but the average Janesville pedestrian wants sand—sand on the sidewalks to prevent slipping and possible accidents.

District Attorney Dunwiddie has stopped fooling with the question of South Janesville and his action has the endorsement of every citizen who has the best interests of the city at heart.

Its loveliness—Or can it be
The eyes that gaze from under?

Though planned with every dainty
A simple little bonnet,
How can it hope to win the heart,
Whatever be upon it?
The loveliness it seems to own,
No fur or lace bestow it,
No other thing than lace alone,
The lovely face below it!

Elbows.
Everybody has elbows and especially famous people so that occasionally they can rub them with the masses. The elbow is a symbol of democracy and if people hadn't discovered how to rub them we might still be living in an age of feudalism. The elbow is very useful and some people who haven't a brain in their heads elbow their way through life and don't seem to mind the difference between elbowing and being elbowed. The elbow is a valuable organ, or member, and if you have an arm to cut off you will need an elbow on it so that the arm can be cut off either above or below the elbow. Elbows are of all sorts, such as ragged, wrinkled, shiny and rheumatic. Elbows are well enough in their way, but a great nuisance at quick lunch counters.

Will pay for the chance to heal Catarrh

After an experience of 25 years, during which time 50 million Americans have used Kondon's Catarrhal Jelly, the manufacturers of this remedy feel so sure that it will relieve catarrh—that they offer to pay for a chance to prove its benefit to any catarrhal sufferer. They announce that any resident of this community can go to almost any drug store and get a complimentary trial can at the expense of the manufacturers. If the druggist has no gratuitous packages, the person may buy a 25 cent tube with the unqualified understanding that if that first tube does not do that person more than a dollar's worth of good, he or she can get their quarter back from either the druggist or the Kondon Company at Minneapolis. Over 35,000 druggists know Kondon's Catarrhal Jelly is effective, harmless, clean and pleasant to apply—and they know the Kondon people will gladly live up to this offer—"quarter back if not worth a dollar." COMMERCIAL CLUB TO OPEN MEETINGS TO ALL INTERESTED

Will issue Invitations to Various Organizations to Send Representatives to Weekly Gatherings of Directors.

In accordance with a ruling passed at a meeting of the directors of the Commercial club held this noon at the Myers hotel, an invitation will be extended hereafter to various organizations in this city to send representatives to the weekly meetings of the directors in order that all such organizations may be thoroughly conversant with the business of the club and may bring before that body any suggestions or grievances which they feel should be considered.

The measure was adopted following the suggestion of S. Parker, president of the club, that more publicity be given the activities of the club, working through its executive committee and directors. Mr. Parker has recently circulated among members and representative citizens a letter asking for criticism and suggestions on the policies and methods of the club for the future.

There were a number of replies favoring the dissemination of knowledge of the club activities. "Many of the members question the necessity of the club," said S. Parker, "and it is naturally wise to know all the business that it considers."

The secretary of the club was asked to draw up invitations to be sent to such associations of men as the doctors, dentists, grocers, trade unions, milk producers, and in fact, all such organizations not now represented on the executive committee of the club, to send a representative to the weekly meetings whenever they so desire.

This step is in accordance with the policy of the club which would give all a chance to know what its interests are, and to what extent it works for the entire community.

The directors today listened to the secretary's report on a number of bills now pending in congress and the state legislature which would affect merchants, business men and manufacturers, and the secretary extended to the directors the hours of labor of both men and women to eight hours per day, or a maximum of forty-eight in a week, except in farming and under certain extraordinary circumstances.

Following an explanation of the activities and past conventions of the Wisconsin Dairymen's convention, the directors then considered the secretary's report on the organization an invitation to hold their annual meeting here next November. The dairymen ask that the Commercial Club furnish a meeting place and the advertising, and that they can guarantee a large farmer attendance at the meetings.

Accordingly, a number of petitions will be circulated among the farmers of this county asking them to endorse the advisability of holding the convention here, and to further state that they will take an active part in the convention proceedings and at the same time place in the hands of the various breeders associations and with the milk producers, with whom the Commercial Club has various stores and points of meeting of the farmers.

The secretary reported that a manufacturing company had been in communication with him regarding the use of its incinerator, it was left for him and for the industrial committee to consider and make further reports.

PENCIL IN LUNGS KILLS LAD OF SIX

Physicians Operate as Last Resort After Fruitless Surgery to Remove Substance From Body.

Within a few minutes after a portion of lead pencil which had been removed, Everett Tripke, six year old son of Paul Tripke, Footville, succumbed yesterday to the effects of the foreign substance. The foreign substance and attacks of pneumonia, measles and whooping cough, the lad's condition was further lowered by the operation, which was decided upon as the last resort to save his life.

The parents are late residents of West Center and moved to Footville on Friday. The funeral will be held from the home at one o'clock and later from a Footville church, El Magnolia building. Interment will be in the Grove cemetery.

The boy had been at Mercy hospital for some time. During the months of his illness every means conceivable to surgery were employed in what eventually proved to be unavailing efforts to dislodge the portion of the pencil. The piece did not go into the stomach, but had slipped down the windpipe, making the operations more difficult and dangerous than had it gone to the stomach.

The parents are late residents of West Center and moved to Footville on Friday. The funeral will be held from the home at one o'clock and later from a Footville church, El Magnolia building. Interment will be in the Grove cemetery.

Y. M. C. A. CAMPAIGN NEAR ITS CLOSE

Director Reports a Total of $8850.00—Meeting Tonight for Those Who Care to Continue Work.

Capt. F. R. Wondyky
Team No. 4.....$1685.00
Capt. S. A. Boyd
Team No. 5.....$1264.50
Capt. W. W. Dale

Though Saturday was a slack day and much of the work in the Y. M. C. A. campaign to raise $10,000 was unable to do much soliciting, the total was swelled to $8,850.00, a sum little over a thousand dollars short of the goal.

Today the campaign directors received two telegrams from Janesville people in California pledging $125.00 additional to the amount already received. From the lists of people who have not yet been seen by the campaigners and from certain tentative offers the directors believe the campaign is able to finish up the campaign inside of two or three days at the outside.

A regular monthly meeting of the directors will be held this evening at the Y. M. C. A. building, at which time it is hoped that all those workers who will continue the campaign until the total amount is obtained will be present to assist the directors in the work of the immediate future and to intensify the final spurt of the enterprise.

One most satisfactory feature of the campaign has been the number of contributions from farmers of the community, men living near Janesville, who felt their obligation to the association and who devoted their time and money to the cause, even though they had not been solicited for subscriptions.

The officers and directors of the Y. M. C. A. are most grateful for the work of the forty men who have volunteered their services to make this campaign a success, who have in many cases of soliciting and have let their own business go during four days of last week. A telegram of congratulation and gratitude was sent to the Y. M. C. A. of Port Edwards, Wis., for the work of the association Mr. Bearmore, the Y. M. C. A. secretary and the director of the campaign, said this morning apropos of the untiring and generous work of the Y. M. C. A. workers.

It is a great help to the association to know that it has so many true friends, men representative of every interest in the community, who are doing their best to put the association in a position of prominence which will broaden its fields of activity and assure its success for the future.

LENTEN SEASON TO BE ONE OF SELF DENIAL
Season of Sack Cloth and Ashes to Begin With Ash Wednesday, February 21.

Divorced from worldly practices for a period of forty days and encouraged by the spirit of the Lenten season, the people of Janesville will bid adieu to frivolity and seclude themselves to a season of prayer and abstinence.

In some sections of the country the Tuesday preceding Ash Wednesday is a day of carnival, called Shrove Tuesday, when, according to custom of the sections and countries, farewells to fresh meat is given.

The Lenten season is observed with fidelity to custom and dictates of the church.

Special services will be held in Janesville churches Wednesday morning and evening.

MRS. MARY M'KUEEN DIES AT AGE OF 98

Woman Born When James Monroe Was President Succumbed at Her Home in Town of Harmony.

In the death of Mrs. Mary McKuen, which occurred at her home in the town of Harmony on Saturday, Rock county has lost one of its oldest citizens. Mrs. McKuen was born in 1819, when James Monroe was president of the United States. Though ninety-eight years old and of necessity weakened by her advanced age, Mrs. McKuen was a woman of her time to her friends, and her associations through a long period of years have ever been of the most valuable.

She was a woman of undoubted ability, and her breadth of understanding of her fellowmen that only years of living and of observation can bring.

Mrs. McKuen, formerly Mrs. Mary Ragen, was born in Canada, but lived in Edgerton with her parents for many years, coming to Janesville in 1861, where two years later she was married to James McKuen.

She is survived by one brother, John Hagen of Edgerton, one sister, Mrs. Stephens of Evansville, Wis., and six children. The funeral will be held Tuesday morning at nine o'clock from St. Patrick's church, of which Mrs. McKuen was a member. Interment will be in Mount Olivet cemetery.

Mrs. William Almond, passed away at her home in Stoughton, Wis., on Saturday. She had been sick for some time. She was born in England, January 2d, 1848. She formerly lived in Janesville and leaves a husband and six children. The funeral will be held Tuesday morning at nine o'clock from St. Patrick's church, of which Mrs. McKuen was a member. Interment will be in Mount Olivet cemetery.

Lawrence J. Mout, received word on Sunday of the death of his brother, Lawrence J. Mout, who passed away at his home at Northampton, Mass. He was seventy-nine years of age. Mr. Mout was a former resident of Janesville and later was in business in Chicago until he retired to make his home in the east. Besides his wife, he is survived by one sister, Mrs. Malcolm Harper of this city. He leaves four children: Andrew J. Mout and Mrs. Fred Avery of Chicago; Harvey Ellis of Northampton, Mass.; and William J. Mout of Boston. Burial will be at Northampton.

Mrs. Mary Gagan, of St. Patrick's Catholic church at nine o'clock this morning over the remains of the late Mrs. Mary Gagan, the Rev. Father of St. Patrick's officiated at the funeral. The Rev. The pallbearers were Thomas Whalen, James Reed, William Dowd, John Joyce, John Murphy and John Cronin.

Gordon L. Childs, Word was received here of the death of Gordon L. Childs, the two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Childs of Poplar street, which occurred after a week's illness. Mrs. Childs will be remembered as Miss Mae Coulter; she lived in Janesville for fifteen years.

Mrs. Fannie Marsh, Last rites over the remains of the late Mrs. Fannie Marsh were conducted by the Rev. Henry H. Fisher, pastor of the Episcopal church, Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, at the home, 802 Center avenue. The remains were tenderly laid at rest in Oak Hill cemetery.

THAW TRIAL ALIENIST TELLS WHY MEN DRINK
New York, Feb. 19.—"Men drink," said Dr. J. B. Gregory, one of the alienists who declared Harry Thaw insane, "to escape the realities of life. And the only way to cure the drink habit is to get the man into another channel. A man can and will get drunk on religion, altruism, mysticism, just as on whiskey if you can turn his impulse in that direction. That is why drinking men who get religion are so strongly religious. Their drink fervor has been transformed into religious fervor. All a drinker needs is a religion, and we should now have countrywide prohibition."

PARIS TO PLANT POTATOES NEAR FORTS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Paris, Feb. 19.—A band of territory about one hundred and fifty yards wide and eighteen miles long skirted the fortifications of Paris and now uncultivated will probably be planted to potatoes next spring. The mayors of the twenty arrondissements, or wards, of Paris have arranged to meet and settle the details. This land still belongs to the nation, but the city of Paris will eventually come into possession of it when the fortifications are demolished. In pursuance of an arrangement with the government, it will then be transformed into parks, boulevards, public playgrounds and sites for public institutions. In the meantime the cultivation of it will in no wise interfere with the plans for the future.

If the coming season is at all favorable to the crop, France will have a record yield of potatoes. The movement of the planting of all uncultivated land to either potatoes or Jerusalem artichokes has become general and official. A government commission is getting ready to furnish seed and fertilizers to all who want to help swell the crop.

DOCTORS.

We told the doctor our symptoms. "Hum," he said. He asked us if we had ever had diphtheria or scarlet fever and we told him we had not. "Hum," he said. "Then he asked us if we ached all over and we replied that we certainly did. "Hum," he said. "Then he placed a thermometer under our tongue. (All doctors talk the same when they have a thermometer under your tongue. It's about something you're not interested in. It's not about you.) Then he removed the thermometer and held it to the light. We waited the reading breathlessly. "Hum," he said. After which he held a stethoscope on our chest and asked us to say, "One, two, three." He would listen in one spot a moment and say "Hum." Then he would move some where else and listen and say "Hum." Finally he reached into his grip and took out a couple of kinds of pills and a little bottle of salad dressing with which we were to paint our tonsils every two hours. Then he said: "If you are not better in a day or so, let me know," and went his way. Sure enough, we were up and about in a day or so. Oh, what a wonderful thing is the medical science!

My wife said, "Henery, I'm done with widdin' this old broom, the work I know is bad for me, and lookit at the room. I must wipe off each article or ruined it will be, the dust goes up in clouds and lights on everything you see. So come across old man, thaw out, release your clutch—come through, a vacuum cleaner we must have; there's nothing else will do; I'll ring up Mr. Sookum now and put him on the job, don't squira behind your whiskers Hen, don't hold your aching nob. You know rheumatics and in gripe is caused by breathing dust; you suffer while the chick within your wallet gathers rust; some silver cogs wheels we'll invest and get this cleaning plant. I said, "alright, install the thing, I'd stop you but I can't." We bought it and it got the dust and all things else in sight, the cats have lost their tails, and our old hairless dog's a fright. The carpet yielded up its fuzz, my pate is bald and bare—the vacuum cleaning plant has wrapped itself around my hair, my whiskers too have disappeared, I've had my Anal slave, and if it keeps on getting me—I'll never need *Lin K. NEWS NOTES FROM MOVIELAND

Of all the pets that have ever been petted by motion picture stars, from box constrictors to angle worms, perhaps the most unique is Max Linder's famous wooden-legged dog of war, "Wah."

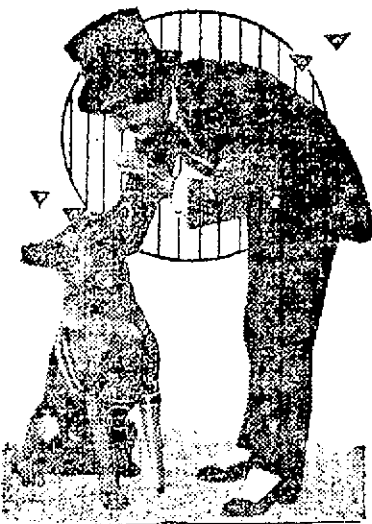

Anybody can send to the Brazilian jungles and get a box, or dig in the earth and get an angle worm, but where on this earth or under it will anybody find another dog with a hickory pin?

"Wah" served with Max in the dispatch bearers' corps in the great world war. The dog's foreleg was shot off at the battle of the Anse at the same time the noted comedian was wounded. Later Linder caused the best surgeon in Paris to fit on the dog's wooden leg. It consists of hickory with an aluminum tip and an aluminum cup at the top. A silver tip was tacked onto the dog's bone and this fitted into the cup. A strap holds the artificial limb in position.

Monsieur Linder brought "Wah" to America when he came here to produce comedies for Essanay. The dog appears in Max's comedy, "Max Comes Across," which will be released late this month.

"FAIR AND WARMER" UPROARIOUSLY FUNNY

Avery Hopwood's Farce Hit of the Decade Played to Delighted Audience at Myers Theatre Last Evening.

"Fair and Warmer" proved to be a sation pure farce, in which the author—Avery Hopwood—takes the kind of material he knows best how to handle and puts it through all its paces. "Two admirable young people, one a too perfect husband, and one a domestic and sweetly innocent young wife, find that their respective marriage partners have been leading lives more gay than creditable, while the domestic member of the family stayed meekly at home. To retaliate the domestic pair decide on some wickedness of their own. Having no practice in the lesser crimes, they greatly exceed and find that, instead of revengeing themselves, they have merely let themselves in for infinitely more than their original troubles.

There was no a lagging moment from the first curtain to the last, and the sparkle of wit enlivened every rapid fire situation.

Nothing quite so good as "Fair and Warmer" has been seen here this season.

MYERS THEATRE.

She Smilingly Defies Death. Annette Kellermann, whose Venus-like form glides through the William Fox million dollar picture beautiful, "A Daughter of the Gods," has grown accustomed to working with destruction a half's breadth away.

As just a part of her share in making the greatest of spectacles in the West Indies, Miss Kellermann leaped from a hundred foot tower into a surf dotted with rocks. The slightest error in gauging her distance meant death. She is swept through a flood gate into swirling rapids, her unprotected body being buffeted from rock to rock. The rapids carry her into the sea as a tropical storm is whipping the water into huge breakers, but this sea nymph swims on until she is buried high and dry upon the rocks by a great wave. And yet Miss Kellermann wonders why every-day life seems so drab.

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson.
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a mother of sixteen years of age. I have a lot of freckles. I would have a very pretty skin if I did not have them. Please tell me how to get rid of them.

(2) I received a letter not long ago from a boy friend. Will it be all right to answer the letter if my parents do not object?

(3) I received a letter from a boy friend. Will it be all right to answer the letter if my parents do not object?

(4) I received a letter from a boy friend. Will it be all right to answer the letter if my parents do not object?

(5) I received a letter from a boy friend. Will it be all right to answer the letter if my parents do not object?

(6) I received a letter from a boy friend. Will it be all right to answer the letter if my parents do not object?

(7) I received a letter from a boy friend. Will it be all right to answer the letter if my parents do not object?

(8) I received a letter from a boy friend. Will it be all right to answer the letter if my parents do not object?

(9) I received a letter from a boy friend. Will it be all right to answer the letter if my parents do not object?

(10) I received a letter from a boy friend. Will it be all right to answer the letter if my parents do not object?

Mrs. Thompson: I was much interested and somewhat surprised at your advice to "Broken-Hearted Wife and Mother." Just reverse the case. Suppose you had been married and had twenty-five years to a woman you thought was absolutely pure and true to you, and who has raised children to manhood and womanhood, and in all those years you never quarrelled with her, having the utmost confidence in her. Suppose you were in a position to give your family more than the necessities of life, even the luxuries of life. Then you suddenly find out that for years she has been untrue to you and when accused of the matter admits the charges, begs for forgiveness and asks for another chance. What would be your answer if you were the man? What would be your advice? If you would be incompetent to give advice on the matter, be frank about it.

IN RESPONSE.

If I were in the man's place I would ask the woman to forgive me for being so blind. I would feel that I was to blame for not understanding her and for stirring her affections for very few cases does a woman turn from her husband to another man if he gives her the love she craves.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I was going with a boy when he met another girl. I know it is pretty bad, but I was making almost every boy he meets like her. She also has a most unusual way of flattery. She can say almost anything and hers don't hesitate a minute before they swallow. Because this girl flatters she can work in a great many unkind and untrue things about other people. I have heard other girls say that she has got their boy friends away from them, because of things she has said to turn the boys away. I never paid much attention to what she said until the same thing happened to me. This girl has told my boy friend something that has made him absolutely cool to me when he used to be very friendly. What shall I do? Shall I ask him for an explanation, or shall I go on letting him misunderstand me?

KATE.

Don't ask for an explanation. Be pleasant to the boy and wait for him to see things in a truer light. Also be as charitable toward the girl as you can. She will punish herself in time.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl fifteen years old. Am I too young to go to parties with other girls my age?

(2) Is it all right for a girl of my age to come home from church with a boy of the same age once in awhile?

(3) You are not too young to go to neighborhood parties, but you are too young to go to dances and places like that.

(4) In the evening you should not attend church unless you go with your parents.

TAKEABLE ARTICLES.

If you should go into a friend's house, pick up some inexpensive little object, say a small vase or an ash tray, toy with it, carry it off and never return it, your friend would certainly thank you a rather queer sort, wouldn't he?

And if you kept on doing that kind of thing the term "takeable articles" would be applied to you. You would be a more out-spoken Anglo-Saxon word, would be apt to get mixed up with your name.

And yet, if you picked up a handkerchief here and a handkerchief there, until your handkerchief box was filled with a motley family, no one would think anything of it because you would only be doing what many people do.

And not only careless people, either.

A Handkerchief With an Alien Initial. An unusually conscientious and punctilious friend of mine drew out a handkerchief marked with an alien initial the other day and looked at it curiously. "Where did I get that?" she wondered. "Isn't it funny?" she added. "How we collect handkerchiefs from our friends."

And the two other women who were present agreed without seeming the least shocked.

Why is it that it is permissible to appropriate certain objects and almost inexcusable to take others? Handkerchiefs are one member of the privileged class; pencils are another.

Nobody Pretends to Return a Pencil. Scarcely anyone pretends to return a pencil. Of course its inexpensive nature may account for our laxness in the particular. But books are not expensive and the same laxity of the public conscience is shown in regard to them also.

"The Kind Mother Uses"

"Every time mother gets out Calumet I know there's going to be good things to eat at our house. Delicious, tender, tempting doughnuts, biscuits, cakes and pies! I've never seen a bakery failure with Calumet. Mother says it's the only Baking Powder that insures uniform results."

PREACHER TAKES UP CUDGEL FOR ENGLAND'S MILLION OF UNMARRIED WOMEN.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
London, Feb. 19.—England has a surplus of more than a million unmarried women. The flower of the Empire's manhood are crippled or dead.
What are you single men going to do about it? Around this blunt question, with its complex moral issues, Rev. A. J. Waldron has built a vaudeville play, acting the leading role himself. Waldron is the only British clergyman who has tackled the great post-war problem of repopulation in full view of the people. Standing face-to-face with the issues, Waldron deals in plain words and leaves his audience wondering whether the old social order cannot stand a drastic revision for the national good. In his dressing-room Waldron lit a cigarette and poured himself a glass of whiskey.
"Forty-three per cent of the British clergyman, young, lusty and of high mental standards are unmarried," he said. "What will they do to restore the national vigor?"
"But they couldn't wipe out the surplus of unmarried women, I could suggest a solution for that, but I dare not."

Household Hints

PUDDINGS FOR COLD DAYS.
Cheese broken into small pieces, two cups bread broken in small pieces three well-beaten eggs, salt and pepper to taste, tablespoon of butter, mix together and bake in well-buttered baking dish and barely cover with milk. Bake thirty minutes in moderate oven. Serve with combination of asparagus salad, or, it makes a nice luncheon dish.

Cherry Pudding.—One-half cup sugar, one tablespoon butter, two-thirds cup sweet milk, two cups raisins, baking powder, flour to make a batter like cake batter. Pour dough into greased pan. Then take one cup of canned cherries (any small fruit may be used), two-thirds cup sugar, and one pint boiling water. Mix together, pour over batter in pan and bake thirty minutes.

Dried Fruit Pudding.—Cook together several kinds of dried fruits, such as dried apricots, apricots, raisins, currants, etc. Sweeten to taste, then thicken with a tablespoon of cornstarch, flavor with lemon extract and cold serve with whipped cream or good sweet milk.

Macaroni Pudding.—One-half pound macaroni, two eggs, one cup cream, one-fourth teaspoon almond extract, fruit juice, five tablespoons sugar, one cup milk, two tablespoons almonds blanched and chopped, one-half cup raisins, one-half cup currants, one-half cup raisins, then remove them. Beat two eggs, add the sugar, salt, milk and cream, then add chopped almonds, raisins, currants and four finely powdered macaroni. Put this into a pudding dish, arrange your soaked macaroni in a hot oven. This is one of the best puddings also something that is a little different.

Bread Pudding.—Break dry bread and crusts in small pieces and cover with milk. Add sugar to taste and a little nutmeg over top. Bake until browned. If desired, an egg can be added, which improves it, but can be made without. Dry cake can be used instead of bread.

New Apple Pudding.—Put slices of any dry cake in steamer and cover each piece with sliced apples. Steam until apples are soft. Arrange in pudding dish, add a little nutmeg over top and serve with whipped cream, or just plain cream and sugar.

SUNDAY NIGHT SUPPER DISHES.

Mary a good housekeeper finds trouble in planning her Sunday evening supper, because the same day is so profitable as served the same day and still she does not want to serve a cold supper.

The following are a few tested recipes for Sunday night supper:

Mock Chicken a la King.—Melt two tablespoons of butter in a sauce pan, add two fresh peeled mushrooms, two tablespoons of onion, five minutes, then add one scant pint of cooked meat from the guinea fowls cut into small lengths and heat thoroughly. Add one cup green and one red pepper freed from seeds and cut into dice. Have in readiness the yolks of two lightly beaten eggs mixed with two tablespoons of cream. Pour this over gradually and add the other ingredients; stir constantly until well thickened. Do not boil. Serve on rounds of toast.

Tripe Oyster Stew.—Use the honeycomb tripe. Clean it well, cover with boiling water and simmer gently for ten minutes. Drain, sprinkle well with salt and pepper, and stand in the box to chill. Cut in small pieces the shape of an oyster, dip first into crumbs, then in beaten egg, again in crumbs and fry in deep fat. Have a stock of gravy and stand in the form of a turnover. Press the edges firmly together and by means of a frying basket cook in deep hot fat to a rich brown.

Meat and Potato Rissoles.—These are easily made and it is an excellent way of using left over mashed potatoes as well as the meat. Have the mashed potato rather stiff, free from lumps and nicely seasoned. Then beat in sufficient egg yolk to moisten the potato and bind it together. Mix lightly, using a little flour as possible. Roll or pat out into a thin sheet. Cut into rounds, place in the center of each a tablespoonful of the minced headcheese moistened with a little stock of gravy and fold the potato in the form of a turnover. Press the edges firmly together and by means of a frying basket cook in deep hot fat to a rich brown.

"SAVE THE BABIES."

These are authentic quotations from the pamphlet on babies by Dr. L. Emmett Holt of Columbia University and Dr. Henry L. K. Shaw of Union University.

The baby's bottle should be boiled and filled with sterile water after using. Boil ten minutes before using. Boil the milk before using in summer. It kills germs. Milk should be boiled in separate feeding bottles after it is prepared. It is easier to fix the entire day's supply at once. How to pasteurize milk for the baby will be told tomorrow.

WHATCHAMA COLUMN.

Jelly.
Jelly is a nervous, excitable food that falls all over itself whenever it tries to go anywhere without its glass. It's all right as long as it sits still and keeps its lid on, but the minute you turn it over it will dash its head and tail and wobble. Nine times out of ten it will collapse and cut its own head off on the edge of the bowl. But jelly's fall right if it is prepared. It's just fruit without a backbone, and it has its limitations. Jelly has to be managed. It is weak and timid. Don't make it ride on your knife. It will wreck itself, sure. And you can't do a thing with wrecked jelly. It's a thing to be avoided. Jelly is your jelly aboard a spoon where it can lie down and be comfortable and it will go anywhere.

The Highflyers

Clyde Writes a Letter and Makes a Decision of Utmost Importance.
"Dearest Molly:
I am so hungry for a word from you that I take the risk of making you still more angry with me by writing. I take this last chance of hearing from you. I have had all too much to think about these last weeks since I left Boston. You may perhaps have heard that I was seriously injured shortly after coming home, and as I lay week after week in bed thinking, thinking, I grew desperate over the situation. I love you, dear little girl, I can not prove it to you. All the facts are dead against me, but it is true that I love you. I don't know how I stood it to leave you. I am a little better now. I came on to take me home with him as soon as he knew that I was in trouble at school. I tried to see you, but your brother would not hear of the thing. I can not blame him. I deserved his contempt. It has come to me as a comforting thought in this vast engulfing darkness that perhaps you did not know that I wanted to marry you before I left. He might not have told you. He was too contemptuous to have mentioned it. I can well believe. Perhaps you felt the same. If I never hear from this letter I shall know that you did; that all is over between us, and that you have gone out of my life forever.

I am not worthy of you, and I do not see how you could feel willing to trust yourself to my keeping, but if you could love me ever a little, I am sure you would not regret it. I have seen a great light, darling. I have thought things out for days and weeks together. I know I am different. There is a spark of manliness left in me, and I have nursed it with such care that I hope it may glow and burn, fusing the elements of good that still live in me into a strong purpose for the future.

I am going to stay right here and go into the business with father. I mean to show him that I can be something besides a trouble and expense. Will you come and cast your lot with me in this little town?

I am sending this to you by special messenger, for I want to know that you get it. I shall wait with what patience I can summon to know my fate. Say the one good word that I may come for you.

"Your unworthy CLYDE."

Young Jaynes read and reread the letter; folded it and put it in its envelope, then seizing his pen, wrote: "Dear Jack:
"I am sending this letter to Molly to you to deliver. Please give it into her hands and to no one else. I want to know that she gets it and I could not be sure if it went the ordinary way. I assure you it is of the utmost importance. Please write when it is answered. Add this to the long list of friendly services you have done me, and accepting my blessing.

"Yours, CLYDE."

When both letters were in the envelope, he sat for some time with his head in his hands.

"Will I be strong enough to stand by my good resolutions if she does not answer?" he mused. "God forbid that I should slump again! To turn my bridges behind me, I will go to the office this very afternoon, and offer myself to father to be made into a 'business man.' He laughed ruefully at the thought. "Poor father, I suppose he will grasp eagerly the scrap of manhood offered to him; fathers are that sort." He rose, tucked the letter in his pocket and started for the door with the thought: "This is right about face, good, earnest; no more high-flying for me."

THE FAT FAIR SEX.
Just a suggestion of a double chin and a reasonable superfluity of tissue in general makes a woman all the more attractive. Even a cold-blooded doctor will not question that. Especially a young woman. Under forty, five per cent excess weight, for height and age, is irresistible as a feminine attraction. A beautiful figure, according to all modern standards, is not precisely normal, but a little more than normal. The perfect built woman is that the number—125 is the woman who can just barely—strange how that word popped in here—just barely squeeze into the suit. Five per cent excess weight makes a figure fit the suit so much better. Also it signifies two things in younger women, first, good health, second, long life. Insurance statistics prove the incentive. Every day observation proves the good health. Most of a doctor's patients are skinny and obese women—skinny under forty and obese afterward. Excess weight after thirty-five or forty signifies two things; first, ill health, and second, short life. Insurance statistics and observation both prove it. With organ disease excepted, a woman is too stout because of two bad habits, namely, overeating and insufficient exercise.

The habit of overeating is acquired just as the habit of smoking or drinking or drug taking is acquired. The victim indulges socially, or from bad example, or because some fool adviser considers it good for the health. This indulgence in a moderate excess intoxicates—auto-intoxication is the name for it. The intoxication produces an abnormal craving for more indulgence and presently the habit becomes fixed and hard to break. A fast is as hard for the big eater as abstinence is for the smoker; the system misuses the customary intoxication and craves it viciously. It demands strong determination and real will power to resist the craving, and indeed but few gourmands possess sufficient will power to win the fight.

The stout woman who can and will turn half a dozen somersets each night and morning and arrange her menu to provide a suitable maintenance ration minus the superfluous, may regulate her weight to her heart's content and her sweetheart's, too, if any.

A fat woman is fat by choice.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

1. At what age would it be advisable to change a baby's diet from baby foods to milk? 2. Is it proper to ask you to name competent baby specialists competent in feeding for one who has but recently moved to town? (J. R. P.)

Answer.—1. At the earliest possible moment. My personal opinion is that the baby should not be given substitutes for milk in the first place, unless for temporary purposes only, and that is the doctor's responsibility. I will be glad to suggest competent physicians. Send stamped, addressed envelope.

2. Must Have Been at Bargain Rates. Should a tooth that needed preliminary treatment? I had three crowned without such preparation and one ulcerated and there is a gum boil on it now. Should I have it extracted? Is a gum boil an abscess? (T. O.)

Answer.—A good dentist would not crown a tooth that needed preliminary treatment. Yes, if filling is impossible, the tooth is only a menace to health. A gum boil is an abscess about the root of a tooth, which has perforated the jaw bone and pointed on the gum—a neglected abscess, in other words, an ulcerated tooth, which has not been given prompt surgical treatment.

Soup Versus Meat.
We are on a strict vegetarian regimen, excepting twice a week we have meat soups. Will you kindly tell me if meat soup (a pound of beef to two plates of soup) is harmful like meat? I sometimes think it is the same as meat. (A. B.)

Answer.—So far as auto-intoxication goes meat soup is even more troublesome than the meat itself. You fall to state why you are trying to avoid meat. As food, of course the soup does not contain the nutriment of the lean meat, but chiefly fat. Soup is stimulating, not nourishing (if the fat is skimmed off). You can't extract the strength or nourishment from meat except by eating the meat itself.

As first aid and a certain remedy, Musterole is excellent. (Thousands of mothers know it.) You should keep a jar in the house, ready for instant use.
It is the remedy for adults, too. Would your skin stand this test?

The bright lights of an evening gathering show up mercilessly the defects of a poor complexion. But the regular use of makes it as easy to have a naturally beautiful skin as to cover up a complexion with cosmetics. It lessens the tendency to pimples, redness and roughness, and in a very short time the complexion usually becomes clear, fresh and velvety.

In severe or stubborn cases, Resinol Soap should at first be used by a little Resinol Ointment. All druggists sell them.
Men with tender faces find that Resinol Shaving Stick prevents irritation.

MOTHER WAS RIGHT.

Nan of Music
MountainBy
FRANK H. SPEARMAN
Author of "WHISPERING SMITH"

(Copyright by Charles Scribner's Sons)

Suddenly the lady stumbled and, as he cruelly reined her, slid helplessly and scrambling along the face of a flat rock. De Spain, leaping from her back, scratched her trembling and looked underfoot. The mare had struck the rock of the upper lava bed. Drawing his revolver, he fired signal shots from where he stood. It could not be far, he knew, from the junction of the two great desert trails—the Calabazas road and the gap road. He felt sure Nan could not have got much north of this, for he had ridden in desperation to get abreast of or beyond her, and if she were south, where, he asked, in the name of God, could she be?

He climbed again into the saddle—the cold was gripping his limbs—and, watching the rocky landmarks narrowly, tried to circle the dead waste of the half-buried flow. With chilled, awkward fingers he filled the revolver again and rode on, discharging it every minute, and listening—hoping against hope for an answer. It was when he had almost completed, as well as he could compute, the wide circuit he had set out on, that a faint shot answered his continuing signals.

With the sound of that shot and those that followed it his courage all came back. But he had yet to trace through the confusion of the wind and the blinding snow the direction of the answering reports.

Hither and thither he rode, this way and that, testing out the location of the slowly repeated shots, and signaling at intervals to return. Slowly and doggedly he kept on, shooting, listening, wheeling and advancing until, as he raised his revolver to fire it again, a cry close at hand came out of the storm. It was a woman's voice borne on the wind, riding swiftly to the left, a horse's outline revealed itself at moments in the driving snow ahead.

Hoping Against Hope for an Answer

De Spain cried out, and from behind the furious curtain heard his name, loudly called. He pushed his stumbling horse on. The dim outline of a second horse, the background of a wagon, a storm-beaten man—all this passed his eyes unheeded. They were bent on a gliding figure running toward him as he slid stiffly from the saddle. The next instant Nan was in his arms.

CHAPTER XXIX.

The Truth.

With the desperation of a joy born of despair she laid her burning cheek hysterically against his cheek. She kissed him on his ice-crusted brows and snow-bent eyes. Her arms held him rigidly. He could not move nor speak till she would let him. Transformed this mountain girl who gave herself so shyly, forgot everything. Her words crowded on his ears. She repeated his name in an ecstasy of welcome, drew down his lips, laughed, rejoiced, knew no shamefacedness and no restraint—she was one freed from the stroke of a descending knife. A moment before she had faced death alone; it was still death she faced—she realized this—but it was death, at least, together, and her joy and tears rose from her heart in one stream.

De Spain comforted her, quieted her, cut away one of the coats from his horse, slipped it over her shoulders, incased her in the heavy fur, and turned his eyes to Duke.

The old man's set, square face surrendered nothing of implacability to the dangers confronting him. De Spain looked for none of that. He had known the Morgan men too long, and faced the Morgan men too often, to fancy they would flinch at the drum-beat of death.

The two men, in the deadly, driving snow, eyed each other. Out of the old man's deep-set eyes burned the resistance of a hundred storms faced before. But he was caught now like a wolf in a trap, and he knew he had little to hope for, little to fear. As De Spain regarded him, something like pity may have mixed with his hatred. The old outlaw was thinly clad. His open throat was beaten with snow, and, standing beside the wagon, he held the reins in a bare hand. De Spain cut the other coat from his saddle and held it out. Duke pretended not to see, and, when no longer equal to keeping up the pretense, shook his head.

"Take it," said De Spain curtly.

"No."

"Take it, I say. You and I will settle our affairs when we get Nan out of this," he insisted.

"De Spain!" Duke's voice, as was its wont, cracked like a pistol. "I can say all I've got to say to you right here."

"No."

"Yes," cried the old man.

"Listen, Henry," pleaded Nan, seeking shelter from the furious blast within his arm, "just for a moment, listen!"

"Not now, I tell you!" cried De Spain.

"He was coming, Henry, all the way—and he is sick—just to say it to you. Let him say it here, now."

"Go on!" cried De Spain roughly.

"Say it."

"I'm not afraid of you, De Spain!"

shouted the old man, his neck bared to the flying ice. "Don't think it! You're a better man than I am, better than I ever was—don't think I don't know that. But I'm not afraid of you, De Spain!"

He faced De Spain; he'll tell you that when I'm dead. All the trouble that ever came between you and me came by an accident—come before you was born, and come through Dave Sassoon, and he's held it over me ever since you come up into this country. I was a young fellow. Sassoon worked for my father. The cattle and sheep war was on, north of Medicine Bend. The Peace river sheepmen raided our place—your father was with them. He never did us no harm, but my brother, Bay Morgan, was shot in that raid by a man named Jennings. I started out to get the man that shot him. Sassoon trailed him to the Bar M, the old De Spain ranch, working for your father."

The words fell fast and in a fury. They came as if they had been choked back till they strangled. "Sassoon took me over there. Toward night we got in sight of the ranchhouse. We saw a man down at the corral. That's Jennings," Sassoon says. I never laid eyes on him before—I never laid eyes on your father before. Both of us died. Next day we heard your father was killed; and Jennings had left the country. Sassoon or I, one of us, killed your father. De Spain. If it was I, I did it never knowing who he was, never meaning to touch him. I was after the man that killed my brother. Sassoon didn't care which it was, never did, then nor never. But he held it over me to make trouble sometime 'twixt you and me. I was a young fellow. I thought I was revenging my brother. And if your father was killed by a patched bullet, his blood is not on me. De Spain, and never was. Sassoon always shot a patched bullet. I never shot one in my life. And I'd never told you this of my own self. Nan said it was the whole truth from me to you, or her life. She's as much mine as she is yours. I nursed her. I took care of her when there weren't no other living soul to do it. She got me and herself out into this, this morning. I'd never been caught, like this if I'd had my way. I told her 'fore we'd been out an hour we'd never see the end of it. She said she'd rather die in it than you'd think she quit you. I told her I'd go on with her and do as she said—that's why we're here, and that's the whole truth, so help me God!

"I ain't afraid of you, De Spain. I'll give you whatever you think's coming to you with a rifle or a gun any time, anywhere—you're a better man than I am or ever was. I know that—and that ought to satisfy you. Or, I'll stand my trial, if you say so, and tell the truth."

The ice-laden wind, as De Spain stood still, swept past the little group with a snarl, roared, insensible alike to its emotions and its deadly peril. Within the shelter of his arm he felt the yielding form of the indomitable girl who, by the power of love, had wrung from the outlaw his reluctant story—the story of the murder that had stained with its red strands the relations of each of their lives to both the others. He felt against his heart the faint trembling of her frail body. So, when a boy, he had held in his hand a fluttering bird and felt the whirling beat of its frightened heart against his strong, cruel fingers.

A sudden aversion to more bloodshed, a sickening of vengeance, swept over him as her heart mutely beat for mercy against his heart. She had done more than any man could do. Now she waited on him. Both his arms wrapped round her. In the breathless embrace that drew her closer she read her answer from him. She looked up into his eyes and waited. "There's more than what's between you and me, Duke, facing us now," said De Spain sternly, when he turned. "We've got to get Nan out of this—even if we don't get out ourselves. Where do you figure we are?" he cried.

"I figure we're two miles north of the lava beds, De Spain," shouted Morgan.

De Spain shook his head in dissent. "Then where are we?" demanded the older man rudely.

"I ought not to say, against you. But if I've got to guess, I say two miles east. Either way, we must try for Sleepy Cat. Is your team all right?"

"Team is all right. We tore a wheel near off getting out of the lava. The wagon's done for."

De Spain threw the fur coat at him. "Put it on," he said. "We'll look at the wheel."

They tried together to wrench it into shape, but worked without avail. In the end they lashed it, put Nan on the lady, and walked behind while the team pushed into the pitiless wind. Morgan wanted to cut the wagon away and take to the horses, but De Spain said, not till they found a trail or the stage road.

So much snow had fallen that in spite of the blizzard, driving with an unrelenting fury, the drifts were deepening, packing, and making all effort increasingly difficult. It was well-nigh impossible to head the horses into the storm, and De Spain looked with ever more anxious eyes at Nan. After half an hour's superhuman struggle to regain a trail that should restore their bearings, they halted, and De Spain, riding up to the wagon, spoke to Morgan, who was driving: "How long is this going to last?"

"All day and all night," Nan leaned closely over to hear the curt question and answer. Neither man spoke again for a moment.

"We'll have to have help," said De Spain after a pause.

"Help?" echoed Morgan scornfully. "Where's help coming from?"

De Spain's answer was not hurried. "One of us must go after it," Nan looked at him intently.

Duke set his hard jaw against the hurrying stream of ice that showered on the forlorn party. "I'll go for it," he snapped.

"No," returned De Spain. "Better for me to go."

"Go together," said Nan.

De Spain shook his head. Duke Morgan, too, said that only one should go; the other must stay. De Spain, while the storm rattled and shook at the two men, told why he should go himself. "It's not claiming you are not entitled to say who should go, Duke," he said evenly. "Nor that our men, anywhere you reach, wouldn't give you the same attention they would me. And it isn't saying that you're not the better man for the job—you've traveled the slinks longer than I have. But between you and me, Duke, it's twenty-eight years against fifty. I ought to hold out a while the longer, that's all. Let's work farther to the east."

NETHERLANDS WAR LOAN IS SECURED EASILY.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

The Hague, Feb. 19.—The new $50,000,000 war loan of the Netherlands has been over-subscribed to the extent of seven millions. This is by no means so brilliant a showing as the two previous war loans of $10,000,000 and $50,000,000 respectively made, but only 4 per cent interest was offered in the present case as compared with four and a half and five per cent in the two former instances. The price of the new loan was 97.

Eau Claire, Feb. 19.—The Telegram announced an increase in its subscription rate to 12 cents a week of effective today. Advancing costs of paper and other materials made the increase necessary, the publishers say.

Stories

The little boy was evidently a firm believer in the old adage. Of two evils choose the lesser. "Turning a corner at full speed, he collided with the minister."

"Where are you running to, my little man?" asked the minister, when he had regained his breath.

"Home," panted the boy. "Ma's going to spank me."

"What!" gasped the astonished minister. "Are you eager to have your mother spank you that you run home so fast?"

"No," shouted the boy over his shoulder as he resumed his homeward fight, but if I don't get there before pa gets home he'll do it!"

John's father kept a candy store, and the little fellow often carried candy to school to divide with the other children. One morning the teacher noticed a strong smell of peppermint and began to investigate in order to stop eating during school hours. Unable to detect the culprit, she bent over small John and whispered.

"John, have you any candy?"

"No, ma'am," he replied.

"Have any of the other boys any?"

"No, ma'am."

As she turned away he touched her hand and said: "I will bring you some at noon."

Nora had asked for a letter of recommendation, which the circumstances of her leaving and the quality of her work made it very awkward for the manager to write. Eventually, after much fruitless scribbling and waste of paper, he produced this:

"To whom it may concern: This is to certify that Nora Foley has worked for us for a week, and we are satisfied."

Does a Majority
Opinion Justify Confiscation?

SOME people do not care for tea or coffee. Some are violently opposed to them as beverages. But, millions do use tea and coffee daily. Suppose opinion against coffee and tea should become greater than opinion in favor of tea and coffee. Would the majority against tea and coffee have the right to take away or destroy the value of the stores, the roasting establishments, the packing plants and other property belonging to the tea and coffee industry?

Not without Compensation.

Thousands of men do not use tobacco—do not care for it. Some are so radical as to consider the use of tobacco almost a crime. But millions do use and enjoy tobacco. Suppose opinion should be reversed. Would the multitude against tobacco be justified in taking away or destroying the value of the property belonging to those who use and enjoy tobacco?

Not without Compensation.

A large number of people do not believe in the use of medicine of any kind. Yet thousands of kinds of medicines are used daily by the world's untold millions. Suppose the anti-drug faction should become stronger in numbers than those in favor of the use of medicines. Would those opposed to medicines have the right to confiscate or destroy the value of the drug stores and other property belonging to those who have faith in medical preparations?

Certain classes of people, generally known as vegetarians, are opposed to the eating of meat. By far the greater proportion of the world's population does eat meat and enjoy its benefits. But, suppose the majority opinion should be against the use of meat. Would the oppositionists have any moral or legal right to take away or destroy the retail markets, packing establishments and other property owned by those engaged in the meat industry?

Not without Compensation.

Some people are opposed to the use of pork as a food, others object to oysters; still others oppose the use of this or that or the other thing. Suppose the minority opinion in any specific case became majority opinion. Would the majority have the right to take away the business or destroy the property of the minority? No! A thousand times NO!

Not without Compensation.

The law may take away or destroy that which exists in violation of law; but the law cannot right-fully destroy that which exists within the law, has been fostered by the law, and has contributed an enormous percentage of taxes to support the government and the law.

Forty Years Ago
 The Janesville Daily Gazette, Feb. 19, 1877. A. F. Moore has purchased of E. W. Whitton, the abstract office, and took possession today. The price paid was $3,800.
 We regret to announce that Mar- barette, the youngest daughter of Mr. Little, superintendent of the Institute for the Blind, is lying in a critical condition of pneumonia.
 Yesterday was a remarkable day for the month of February. The sky was cloudless and the atmosphere as mild as that of a May day. At one o'clock in the afternoon the thermometer in- dicated 60 degrees above zero, a height which it had not reached since the 12th of last November when it stood 56 degrees above.
 A young man in the second ward of this morning undertook the task of "breaking" a young horse belong- ing to Capt. Van Kirk. Whenever the young fellow attempted to put on the harness, the horse became trouble- some. To remedy this evil, he de- cided to use a croquet mallet on the horse. He began to apply the mallet on the rear of the horse, when the latter concluded to go into the den- tal business. His head was raised and with a savage kick hit the young man in the mouth, knocking him down and breaking out several of his teeth.

HOW CARELESS OF HIM!

CITY TO HAVE TEAM IN NEWLY ORGANIZED ROLLER POLO LEAGUE

Eight Town League Now Being Organized for Next Season, But Will Stage First Games This Year.

Janesville followers of the sport of roller polo are organizing and have secured a franchise in a league to be composed of at least eight teams from this state, Indiana and Illinois. The organization is being protected for next season at the present time, but it is the plan of the backers to play a series of three or four games during March.

Teams from Racine, Kenosha, Chicago and Hammond and Richmond, Ind., have already expressed favorable interest in the league and will aid in the formation of the organization. The teams will be composed of local players and will be coached by experienced players.

BADGER TEAM SHOWS CHAMPIONSHIP FORM AGAINST OHIO STATE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Feb. 19.—Playing an article of basketball which resembled that of previous championship teams, the University of Wisconsin five won handsomely from Ohio State Saturday evening by the count of 40 to 15. The Badgers played a wonderful game, both on the offensive and defensive. At no time during the game were the Ohio men able to penetrate the guarding of Wisconsin, while on the other hand the Badgers scored at will.

The game started in whirlwind fashion with Ohio State having the ball. The Badgers, however, quickly gained control and scored first. The game was a masterful display of basketball, with the Badgers showing championship form.

BROOKLYN TIGERS TRIM FREEPORT, 42-34

Fast Illinois Team Have Terminated Winning Streak Extending Over Two Years.—Kivlin Is Star.

Brooklyn, Wis., Feb. 19.—It was left to the Tigers of this village to give the Freeport semi-professional team its first defeat in two years, the game played by these two teams here on Saturday evening resulting in a victory for the locals by a score of 42 to 34. It was by far the fastest exhibition of basketball ever seen by a Brooklyn audience, and this in a town where fast games are a weekly occurrence, and where fast teams are always cordially invited. Freeport counted its first defeat in two years, the game played by these two teams here on Saturday evening resulting in a victory for the locals by a score of 42 to 34.

Cravath Wanted to Play in California, but Inability of the Philly Management to Obtain Waivers from All the National League Teams Necessitated His Reluctant Departure.

Max Carey, the original and chronic hold-out artist of the Pittsburgh Nationals, is going to have company this year, for a few weeks at least. Douglas Baird, for two seasons an infielder on the Pirates, has become a hold-out, according to a letter received from him by President Dreyfuss. Baird refuses to sign a contract because of a cut in salary.

Clark Griffith is not much impressed with the plan outlined in a letter to him by Captain Hutton of the New York Americans, to give all baseball players military training from the time they arrive at their southern camps until the world series games are played. Griffith's idea is that his ball players will have plenty to do getting into condition to play the game while at Augusta and keep their batting eyes keen after coming back north. But evidence that Hudson's scheme will not be without supporters is furnished by the action of Manager Mitchell of the Chicago Nationals, who has wired to President Weephamman recommending a period of military training each day for the Cubs. Weephamman, it is said, approves the plan.

Progress is reported in the plans for organization of the Michigan State league. Word from Lansing is that the financing of a club there is assured. With W. A. Trimble, a real estate dealer, taking the franchise. The other cities hoped for are Bay City, Flint, Jackson, Battle Creek and either Adrian or Saginaw, providing the latter city does not go into the Central league.

With the passing of Westmore Wilcox of Harvard, the 410-yard race in the intercollegiate championships becomes a wide open affair. Princeton with Billy Moore and Jack Eddy has two men who should be well to the front under the new conditions. Moore won the furthest at the college meet last spring, but he is a crack-jack quarter miler.

Timon Bowden, outfielder recently secured by the Chattanooga club, once had a trial with the St. Louis Browns. He was fast as a streak but failed to hit. He has seasoned since his St. Louis engagement, however, and the Chattanooga club expect him to hold up his end with the bat in the Southern league. Last season Bowden managed the Chattanooga team, the South Atlantic league until it disbanded.

It is said that John Coyler, who was appointed coach of the Cornell crew last summer, will probably be a candidate for stroke-oar in the varsity shell. Coyler is a senior and perfectly eligible to row. Whether he does so or not, however, is another question. He combined the duties of captain and stroke last spring and was so worn out physically after the Foughkeepsie regatta that he was forced to go to the hospital.

Yale will be represented in the Intercollegiate Lacrosse league this year for the first time. The Blue took up the game only a season or two ago and has made rapid strides. Strange as it may seem, the sport was introduced to the Yale team by the captain of the Harvard twelve who made a trip or two a week to New Haven to coach the few candidates who reported the first year was taken up. Now the Blue feels strong enough to go into the league.

Harvard's prospect for a winning crew this year are not as bright as they were a year ago. Some of the best material in the 1916 eight has been taken by graduation and the squad has suffered a heavy blow in the loss of Quimby who rowed No. 7 in the varsity boat last spring. Quimby suffered an attack of infantile paralysis last summer and although he expects to return to the university for the spring semester it is doubtful if he will ever row again.

MORRIS MILLER

It has now been definitely decided that Gavy Cravath will not pass from the big show this year. During the off season many laudatory articles regarding the Phillies' slugger have been published on the assumption that old "wooden shoes," who at one time wore a Washington uniform, had played his last game as a big leaguer.
